I got rid of the second header on the page. There's no need for the to be a sub-header on the home page (as opposed to a header specifically for a course). The "Help" element has been moved to the right hand column; the "Kaltura" element has been removed because I have never heard of someone to use it; the "Zoom" element is found under the "Help" element because it simply provides instructions on how to use Zoom.

I changed the header to be more simplified by getting rid of the "Subscriptions" element so that those notifications could be moved to the "Alerts" element.

I changed the elements included in the sub-header to show the more relevant elements for the course. The "Tools" elements has a drop down bar that includes any other elements not shown on the header itself.

Course Announcements

I removed the header photo for the course and replaced it with this title. This takes up less space so the screen can include more relevant information.

Professor Contact Info

Because the relevancy of elements for a course is a more subjective decision, I've also included a settings symbol here which will allow the user to customize the sub-header.

Upcoming Deadlines

I replaced these elements in the right hand column to include more relevant information specifically for the course. Previously, they had just been repetitions of elements shown in the eLC homepage.
